The United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) has estimated that by 2015, the number of illiterate people in the world will reach 1 billion. This is a staggering increase, and it is a reflection of the fact that the world's population is growing rapidly, and that the number of people who are illiterate is growing even faster.

The number of people who are taking the SAT is growing rapidly. In 1990, more than 1 million students took the SAT. By 2000, the number of students taking the SAT is expected to reach 2 million. This growth is due to a number of factors, including the increasing number of students who are taking the SAT as a requirement for admission to college. In addition, the SAT is becoming more popular as a measure of a student's academic achievement. The SAT is a standardized test that measures a student's knowledge of English and mathematics. It is used by colleges and universities to evaluate the academic ability of students who are applying for admission. The SAT is a multiple-choice test that consists of two sections: a verbal section and a math section. The verbal section includes a reading comprehension section and a writing and language section. The math section includes a multiple-choice section and a grid-in section. The SAT is a challenging test that requires a strong understanding of English and mathematics. It is a test that is used by colleges and universities to evaluate the academic ability of students who are applying for admission. The SAT is a test that is used by colleges and universities to evaluate the academic ability of students who are applying for admission.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) converge to the solutions of the system (2) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$.
